In the GENERAL ASSEMBLY,
the 28th Day of September, 1778.

ORDERED, That the Ordinance this Day passed 'to prohibit the Exportation of all Kinds 'of Provision, Hemp and Cordage from this 'State, to certain times therein limited; and 'for inflicting Penalties on all Persons who 'shall violate any Embargo which may be here-'after laid by his Excellency the President or 'Commander in Chief of this State, agreeable 'to the Constitution,' be forthwith printed and published in the Gazette of this State, and the other public Papers.

PETER TIMOTHY, C. G. A.

An ORDINANCE for prohibiting the Exportation of all Kinds of Provisions, Hemp and Cordage from this State, to certain Times therein limited; and for inflicting Penalties on all Persons who shall violate any Embargo which may be hereafter laid by his Excellency the Governor or Commander in Chief of this State, agreeable to the Constitution.

WHereas the Legislature of this State think it expedient, that an Embargo should be laid on all Kinds of Provision, until the fifteenth Day of November next, unless his Excellency the President, with the Advice and Consent of the Privy Council, shall think it expedient sooner to take off the said Embargo by Proclamation: AND WHEREAS, it is also expedient that penalties should be inflicted on all Persons who shall violate any Embargo which shall hereafter be laid, agreeable to the Constitution of this this State: Be it therefore Ordained, by his Excellency RAWLINS LOWNDES, Esq; President and Commander in Chief in and over the State of South-Carolina, by the Honourable the Legislative Council and General Assembly of the said State, and by the Authority of the same, that it shall not be lawful for any Person or Persons, on or before the fifteenth Day of November next, to ship, lade or receive on board any Ship, Vessel or Boat, in order to be exported from this State; or to lade on board, and export in any Ship, Vessel or Boat, any Rice, Indian Corn, Pease, Flour, Biscuit, Wheat, Rye small Rice, Beef, Pork, Bacon, or any other Kind of Provisions whatsoever (except for necessary Provisions on the then next intended Voyage of such Ship, Vessel or Boat) upon Pain of forfeiting all and every the said Provisions and other prohibited Articles found on board the same, and also Treble the Value thereof, to be paid by the Owner or Owners, Shipper or Shippers of such prohibited Articles as aforesaid; one Moiety thereof for the Use of this State, and the other Moiety to him, her or them, who will inform and sue for the same in any Court of Record in this State, by Action of Debt, Bill or Plaint, or in the Court of Admiralty of this State; which said Court is hereby authorised and empowered to have Jurisdiction of every such Cause if brought before them, and shall proceed to hear, try and determine the same, agreable to the Directions laid down and prescribed by an Act of the General Assembly of this State, passed 13th February, 1778, entitled, "An Act to empower the Court of Admiralty of this State to have Jurisdiction in all Cases of Captures of the Ships and other Vessels of the Inhabitants and Subjects of Great Britain, to establish the Trial by Jury in the said Court in Cases of Captures, and for other Purposes therein mentioned;" and the Master, Mate and other Mariners of any such Ship, Vessel or Boat wherein any such Offence shall be committed, knowing the same and willingly aiding and assisting therein, and being thereof duly convicted as aforesaid, shall be imprisoned for the space of Three Months, without Bail or Mainprize: Provided nevertheless, That nothing herein contained shall extend or be construed to extend, to restrain or prevent any Person or Persons to ship and export any of the Provisions before enumerated, after his Excellency the President, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Privy Council, shall think proper to issue his Proclamation, giving Permission for exporting the said Provisions, or any Part thereof, at any Time before the said fifteenth Day of November next.

And be it further Ordained by the Authority aforesaid, That whenever the Governor or Commander in Chief of this State, by and with the Advice and Consent of the Privy Council, shall think proper to issue, and cause to be published a Proclamation, agreeable to the Constitution of this State, prohibiting the Exportation of any Kind of Provisions, or other Goods and Merchandize, it shall not be lawful for any Person or Persons whomsoever, to ship or lade on board of any Vessel, Ship or Boat in this State, any such Provisions, or other Goods or Merchandize so prohibited by such Proclamation, upon Pain of forfeiting all and every the said Provisions or other prohibited Articles found on board the said Ship, Vessel or Boat, and also treble the Value thereof, to be paid by the Owner or Owners, Shipper or Shippers of such prohibited Articles; one Moiety thereof to the Use of this State, and the other Moiety to him, her or them who will inform and sue for the same, in any Court of Record in this State, by Action of Debt, Bill of Plaint, or in the Court of Admiralty aforesaid.

AND WHEREAS, the Scarcity of Hemp, Cordage, salted Beef and Pork in this State, makes it necessary that the same should be prohibited from being exported for a longer Time than the aforementioned Articles: Be it therefore Ordained, by the Authority aforesaid, That it shall not be lawful for any Person or Persons whomsoever, from and after the passing of this Ordinance, to ship or lade on board of any Ship, Vessel or Boat, for Exportation, any Hemp or Cordage, or any Salted Beef or Pork (except for necessary Provision on the then next intended Voyage of such Ship, Vessel or Boat) from this State, until the first Day of October 1779, on Pain of forfeiting the said Hemp, Cordage, salted Beef or Pork; and also treble the Value thereof, to be paid by the Owner or Owners, Shipper or Shippers of such Hemp, Cordage, salted Beef or Pork; one Moiety thereof to the Use of the State, and the other Moiety to him, her or them, who will inform and sue for the same, in any Court of Record in this State, by Action of Debt, Bill of Plaint, or in the Court of Admiralty as aforesaid: Provided always, that nothing herein contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to prevent the Governor or Commander in Chief for the Time being, with Advice of the Privy Council, from sending any of the Provisions to any of the Militia or Troops of this State, who may be sent out of the same on Public Service.

In the Council chamber,
the 28th Day of September, 1778.
Assented to,

CHARLES-TOWN, October 7.

The following letter from General Sullivan to the President of Congress, could not be inserted in our last for want of Room.

Head Quarters, Tiverton, August 31, 1778.

"UPON the Count d'Estaing's finding himself under the necessity of going to Boston to repair the loss he sustained in the late gale of wind, I thought it best to carry on my approaches with as much vigour as possible against Newport, that no time might be lost in making the attack upon the return of his fleet, or any part of it, to co-operate with us. I had sent expresses to the Count to hasten his return, which I had no doubt would at least bring part of his fleet to us in a few days. Our batteries played upon the enemy's works for several days with apparent good success, as the enemy's fire from our works visibly grew weaker, and they began to abandon some of those next to us; and on the 27th we found they had removed their cannon from all the out works except one. I should have attempted carrying the works by storm, as I found they had with-drawn their cannons from their out-works, had I not found to my great surprise that the volunteers which composed great part of my army had returned and reduced my number to little more than that of the enemy; between two and three thousand returned in the course of twenty four hours, and others were still going off upon a supposition, that nothing could be done before the return of the fleet. Under those circumstances and the apprehension of the arrival of an English fleet with a reinforcement to relieve the garison, I sent away all heavy stores that could be spared from the army to the main; also a large party was detached to get the works in repair on the north end of the island, to throw up some additional ones, and put in good repair the batteries at Tiverton and Bristol, to secure a retreat in case of necessity. On the 28th a council was called, in which it was unanimously determined to remove to the north end of the island, fortifying our camp, secure our communication with the main, and hold our ground on the island till we could know whether the French fleet would soon return to our assistance. On the evening of the 28th we moved with our stores and baggage which had not been previously sent forward, and about two in the morning encamped on Butts hill, our right extending to the west road, and, left to the east road. The flanking and covering parties still further towards the water on right and left. One regiment was posted in a redoubt advanced of the right of the first line; Col. Henry B. Livingston with a light corps consisting of Col. Jackson's detachment and a detachment from the army, was stationed in the east road. Another light corps under command of Col. Laurens Col. Fleury and Major Talbot, was was posted on the west road. Those corps were posted near three miles in front; in rear of them was the picket of the army commanded by Col. Wade. The enemy having received intelligence of our movement, came out early in the morning with nearly their whole force in 2 columns, advanced in the two roads and attacked our light corps. They made a brave resistance, and were supported for some time by the picket. I ordered a regiment to support Col. Livingston, another to Col. Laurens, and at the same time sent them orders to retire to the main army in the best order they could; they kept up a retreating fire upon the enemy, and retired in excellent order to the main army. The enemy advanced on our left very near, but were repulsed by General Glover. They then retired to Quaker Hill. The Hessians formed on a chain of hills running northward from Quaker Hill. Our army was drawn up, the first line in front of the works on Butts Hill, the second in rear of the hill, and the reserve near a creek, and near half a mile in rear of the first line. The distance between those hills is about one mile; the ground between the hills is meadow land, interspersed with trees and small copse of wood. The enemy began a cannonade upon us about nine in the morning, which was returned with double force. Skirmishing continued between the advanced parties until near 10 o'clock, when the enemy's two ships of war and some smaller vessels, having gained our right flank and began a fire, the enemy bent their whole force that way, and endeavoured to turn our right under the ships fire, and to take the advanced redoubt on the right. They were twice driven back in great confusion, but a third trial was made with greater numbers, and with more resolution, which had it not been for the timely aid sent forward, would have succeeded. A conflict of near an hour ensued, in which the cannon from both armies placed on the hills played briskly in support of their own party. The enemy were at length routed and fled in great confusion to the hill where they first formed, and where they had artillery and some works to cover them; leaving their dead and wounded in considerable numbers behind them. It was impossible to ascertain the number of dead on the field, as it could not be approached by either party, without being exposed to the cannon of the other army. Our party recovered about 20 of their wounded, took near 60 prisoners according to the best accounts I have been able to collect; among the prisoners is a lieutenant of grenadiers. The number of their dead I have not been able to ascertain, but know them be very considerable. An officer informs me, that in one place he counted sixty of their dead. Col. Campbell came out the next day to gain permission to view the field of action to search for his nephew, who was killed by his side, whose body he could not get off, as they were closely pursued. The firing of artillery continued thro' the day, the musquetry with intermission, six hours; the heat of the action engaged near an hour, which must have ended in the ruin of the British army, had not their redoubts on the hill covered them from pursuit. We were about to attack them in their lines, but the men having had no rest the night before, and nothing to eat either that night or the day of the action, and having been in constant action through most of the day, it was not thought advisable, especially as their position was exceedingly strong, and their numbers fully equal, if not superior to ours. Not more than 1500 of my troops have ever been in action before. I should before have taken possession of the hill occupied and fortified it, but it is no defence against an enemy coming from the south part of the Island, though exceedingly good against an enemy advancing from the north end towards the town, and had been fortified by the enemy for that purpose. I have the pleasure to inform Congress, that no troops could possibly shew more spirit than those of ours which were engaged. Col. Livingston, and all the officers of the light corps, behaved with remarkable spirit; Col. Laurent, Col. Fleury, and Major Talbot, with the officers of that corps, behaved with great gallantry. The brigades of the first line, Varnum's Glover's, Cornell's and Green's behaved with great firmness. Major General Green, who commanded in the attacks on the right, did himself the highest honour, by the judgment and bravery exhibited in the action. One brigade only of the second line was brought to action, commanded by Brigadier General Lovell; he and his brigade of militia behaved with great resolution. Col. Crane, and the officers of artillery deserve the highest praise.

"In the morning of the 29th I received a letter from his Excellency Gen. Washington, giving me notice that Lord Howe had again sailed with the fleet; and receiving intelligence at the same time, that a fleet was off Block Island, and also a letter from Boston, informing me that the Count d'Estaing could not come round so soon as I expected, a council was called, and as we could have no prospect of operating against Newport with success, without the assistance of a fleet, it was unanimously agreed to quit the island until the return of the French squadron. To make a retreat in the face of an enemy, equal if not superior in number, and cross a river without loss, I knew was an arduous task, and seldom accomplished if attempted. As our centries were within 1 or 2 rods of each other, I knew it would require the greatest care and attention. To cover my design from the enemy, I ordered a number of tents to be brought forward and pitched in sight of the enemy, and almost the whole army employed themselves in fortifying the camp. The heavy baggage and stores were sailing back and crossing through the day. At dark the tents were struck, the light baggage and troops pulled down and, before 12 o'clock the main army had crossed with the stores and baggage. The Marquis de la Fayette arrived about 12 o'clock in the evening from Boston, where he had been by request of the General Officers, to solicit the speedy return of the fleet. He was sensibly mortified that he was out of action, and that he might not be out of the way in case of action, he had rode from hence to Boston in seven hours, and returned in six and a half, the distance near 70 miles. He returned time enough to bring off the pickets and other parties, which covered the retreat of the army, which he did in excellent order; not a man was left behind, nor the smallest article lost. I hope my conduct through this expedition may meet with approbation of Congress.

"Major Morris, one of my Aids will have the honour of delivering this to your Excellency, I must beg leave to recommend him to Congress, as an officer who in the last as well as several other actions, has behaved with great spirit and good conduct; and doubt not Congress will take such notice of him as his long service and spirited conduct deserve. I have the honour to be, Dear Sir, with much esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant JOHN SULLIVAN.

"P.S. The event has proved how timely my retreat took place, as two sail of the enemy's ships arrived in the harbour the morning after the retreat.

Last Saturday afternoon, a British ship of war, with yellow sides, and her stern disguised, supposed to be one of our old visitors (the Perseus, commanded by Geo. Keith Elphinstone, Esq;) appeared standing in, about E.S.E. of this bar, in chace of a French Brig. The Brig getting in safe, the Ship displayed a large continental ensign at her foretop-gallant mast head, hawled up her courses, took in her top-gallant sails, came close up to the bar, lay to there about an hour, never chaced or fired at the pilot boat then out, and just before dark set all sails again, and stood off to the Eastward; since which she has not re appeared.

The brig proved to be Le Henry, Capt. Corvaisier, of and from Nantes, and sailed from thence the 8th of August ——By this vessel we have the following intelligence, viz. That about the 15th of July, 3 ships of the line and 2 smaller, with a great quantity of military stores on board, supposed to be intended as a reinforcement to Count d'Estaing, had sailed from Toulon; which Capt. Corvaisier thinks he saw, about 30th of August.—That the Brest fleet, commanded by M. d'Orvilliers, having put to sea about the 18th of July, on the 27th, 25 or 30 leagues S. W. of Ushant, met with the British fleet commanded by Admiral Keppel, consisting of 30 Ships of the line.—That about eleven o'clock in the forenoon, an engagement ensued by Admiral Keppel's attacking M. d'Orvilliers' rear division; but the weather proved so stormy, and the sea ran so high, that not more than 20 ships on either side were engaged, and neither could open their lower tiers.—That the engagement, however, continued till 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and the fire on both sides was incessant for about 3 hours of the time; when the British fleet withdrew. That M. d'Orvilliers kept his fleet in close order, and the next morning went, in quest of the British fleet, which had disappeared in the night, but in vain. That thereupon, and as some of his ships had been much damaged, he on the 29th put back to Brest, to refit, and carried in every ship, but the Duc de Bourgogne and the Alexander, which arrived safe afterwards, and carried in with them a privateer of 14 guns.—That the greatest damage sustained by the French ships was in spars and rigging.—That the English ships fired chiefly langrage, but that kind of loading had not the effect they expected, for in general the French lost very few men.—That, on the contrary, the loss of the English in men, must have been great, as the French pointed all their cannon at the hulls of their ships, and were remarked to fire two guns for one of the English.—That Admiral Keppel was also supposed to have returned into port, to repair the damage his ships had received, supposed to be considerable.—That M. de Orvilliers having had orders to observe the utmost prudence, in attacking, as well as in his defence, he conducted himself as a great and skilful officer, all his dispositions were master strokes, and he eluded coming to action till he gained the advantage of the wind. That three of the French ships had suffered considerably: one of them, the Amphion of 50 guns, after exchanging 22 broad sides, was obliged to withdraw before the engagement was over, having lost her rudder, mizzen and main masts and bowsprit, all her rigging cut to pieces, eleven men killed, and 22 wounded; the second was the Sphinx of 64 guns, which a frigate was obliged to tow in; the third, M. du Chaffault's ship.—That the Couronne of 80 guns, and the Ville de Paris of 90, kept up an infernal fire, especially the latter, which was in a continual blaze.—That M. du Chaffault had his Captain M. Bice, and his nephew killed, was himself wounded in the shoulder and foot, so that his life was in danger, and his son had his thigh broke.—That on board the Amphion, M. Vincelles, 2d Lieut. and M. Bolgue, Ensigne de Garde Marine, were killed; and M. de la Croix, 1st Lieutenant, wounded.—That the Duc de Chartres, altho' the ship he was on board of was in a constant hot fire, was not hurt.—That the diligence used in refitting the fleet has so great that it was expected it would soon be in a condition to put to sea again, in as fine order as ever.—That immediately after the return of the fleet, upwards of 60 French coasting pilots had been dispatched to Spain; and 5 ships of the line, with some frigates, had been sent out, whose destination was not known.

The Privateer Ship General Moultrie of this Port, commanded by Capt. Downham Newton, who sailed on a Cruize the 2d of September, is returned, with a fine privateer Brig, fitted out from Jamaica, to lie and cruize off this Bar, mounting 14 four pounders, 12 Swivels and four Cohorns, and having 76 men, called the Wasp, and commanded by Capt. William Smythe which he took in Latitude 28, 30, in the Evening of the 23d ult. after a warm Contest of two Hours, wherein he was most gallantly defended, and not till she had lost ten Men killed and 25 wounded, several of which are since dead, her Spars so shattered, and her Hull so battered, that at 3 the next Morning the Foremast, Bowsprit and Head of the Mainmast went overboard, and the Water in the Hold was over the Tier of Butts, and obliged the Captors to bale and pump at both Hatchways.—Capt. Smythe received three slight Wounds during the Engagement.—The General Moultrie had five Men wounded.—Capt. Newton much applauds the Conduct of his Officers and Men; as well as the Bravery of Capt. Smythe.

Sept. 23. ALEXANDER ROSE.

On Tuesday the 13th of October next, at Eleven o'clock, will be sold at public sale, by Samuel Prioleau and Co. at their store on the corner of Broad and Church streets,

A few LOTS in Charlestown,

IN point of situation, with regard to prospect, height of the land, good water, and convenience for trade, inferior to none in the town, being opposite to a quay 230 feet front, so near the channel of the river, that any ships that can come over the bar, may lay afloat at LOW water, from one end to the other, much within the distance fixed by law, and which is so land locked, and guarded besides by a pier 80 feet front on the river, projecting to the N.E. beyond it, into the channel, and throwing off the ebb tide, that the ships may load there with the greatest ease and safety, much more so in hard easterly winds, than in most parts of the harbour; and 'tis well known, that from the number of stores, their contiguity to the head of the quay, and other conveniences, no place can hardly be better calculated for dispatch, as many gentlemen in trade have frequently experienced.—— The lots (as in my plan to be seen at Mr. Posug's, Mr. Gamble's, or at my house) lay on each side of a street, called Front-street, 50 feet wide, those to the east side are 175 feet wide, those to the westward thereof 200 feet deep, these last have a double front, backing on Middle street forty feet wide.

The Conditions will be made known at the sale—the lots may be seen staked out on the spot.

CHRISTOPHER GADSDEN.

N. B. A place of 100 feet in length, and of a sufficient breadth, on the east side of Wharf street, and between that street and the west side of the dock behind the quay and the large stores, will be left for a public market place, (reserving to myself and heirs, the usual rights of wharfage and tollage) where canoes will be entirely safe from damaging themselves or each other.

To be sold by public vendue,

On wednesday the 14th of October, at my room, precisely at 12 o'clock,

THAT valuable Plantation of 200 acres of land, situate on the Round O, joining lands Elijah Postell, M. S. John and Lawrence Saunders, and the estate of Hugh Ferguson. On the estate are a good commodious dwelling house, a barn, and other out-houses, useful and necessary for a well settled plantation. The situation is very pleasant, standing upon a hill, and thereby commanding a fine prospect on its own and neighbour's grounds; the land is good for rice as well as provision; with fine springs of water.

Also, three hundred acres of Pine Barren, with about three miles.

Likewise, That plantation or tract of land, containing 113 acres situate on the east side of Cooper river, in St. Thomas's parish, bounding on land now of late belonging to Jeremiah Russel, and part on lands of Francis Paget, to the southward on lands of James Akin, Esq; to the eastward on lands of Mrs. Mary Devereux, and to the westward on Cooper river.

And that valuable plantation, containing 200 acres situated in St. James's parish Santee, joining lands of John-Cummin Ball, Andrew Hazel, and Robert Sallens, of which about 70 acres are cleared, the greatest part of which is good rice land, and the uncleared lands are well timbered. On the premises are a small dwelling house, barn, negro houses, stable, and overseer's house, a good orchard and garden, and is about two miles from a good landing. JACOB VALK.
